

Navy Plane Spots Liner

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) —The U. S. Navy said Wednesday night the captive Portuguese passenger liner Santa Maria is en route to Angola in Portuguese West Africa with its 600 passengers.

The Navy ordered more ships and a long-range observation plane into action when the rebels who seized the vessel on the high seas four days ago refused a request to return to San Juan.

Two U. S. destroyers in the area of the Cape Verde Islands off French West Africa were ordered to stand by to intercept the Santa Maria.

Refuses Request

A U. S. Neptune patrol plane spotted the commandeered vessel Wednesday 900 miles east of Trinidad Wednesday, established radio contact with the ship's rebel Capt. Henrique Galvao, and asked him to turn back to San Juan.

The Navy said the request was refused but Galvao, who led the band of 70 that took over the ship last Sunday, offered to confer with U. S. or other government officials about the Santa Maria.

He barred talks, however, with Portuguese or Spaniards.

The rebels claim they seized the ship to stir up rebellion against the Portuguese government, and Spain is allied to the Portuguese regime.

Galvao, a former Portuguese army officer, once held a high post as a government inspector in Angola, a Portuguese colony on the west coast of Africa adjoining the chaotic Congo.

Presumably Galvao is counting on finding some supporters there. Portuguese circles have suggested he might try to reach Angola or some other Portuguese colonial territory and proclaim a new government.

Change Plans
Rear Adm. Allen Smith Jr., commandant of the 10th Naval District in the Caribbean, said the Neptune patrol plane which spotted the Santa Maria is now being relieved by a Constellation hurricane hunter with a longer range.

He said the Santa Maria was 1,800 miles west of French West Africa, or about halfway between San Juan and Africa.

Smith said the U. S. atomic submarine Seawolf, which is operating in the area, might be called into the operation because of its long range.

The two destroyers standing by to intercept if ordered, are the Gearing and the Vogelgesang which are on a goodwill tour of African ports.

The destroyer Damato, although low on fuel, was trying to get within sighting distance of the Santa Maria. Another destroyer, the Wilkes, was on its way to Trinidad for refueling.

President Kennedy said in a Washington news conference that the U. S. Navy "has not been given instructions to conduct boarding operations." Present orders to the Navy are simply to accompany the vessel, he added.

38 Americans
Lisbon dispatches said the Portuguese frigate Pero Escobar sailed from Lisbon Wednesday night amid reports there that two U. S. Navy destroyers have been ordered out of Abidjan, Gold Coast, to try to intercept the liner and its 950 hostage passengers and crewmen. Among the passengers are 38 Americans.

The Pero Escobar, armed with a pair of 3-inch guns, reportedly was to cooperate with American destroyers in the Atlantic.

Portuguese maritime circles claimed two other U. S. vessels have been, or will be, detached from the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean to help in an intercept.

The belief in Portugal was that the Santa Maria will try to put in at Conakry, Guinea, if it cannot reach Portuguese territory in Africa.

The man who gave instructions for the liner's capture at sea—Gen. Humberto Delgado—indicated in Sao Paulo, Brazil, that the ship's 600 passengers are hostages.

May Not Fire

Delgado said he expected that no U. S. or British warship would fire on the Santa Maria while the passengers are aboard. He would not say whether he thought the Portuguese might fire on the vessel.

The Santa Maria's seizure was perpetrated as a political move to stimulate rebellion against Portugal's premier, Antonio de Oliveira Salazar.

Delgado said the passengers would be landed somewhere as soon as possible. But he made it clear the spot would be on the other side of the Atlantic.

The Navy here said the ship was moving eastward—away from the American continents—and gave its positions as 30.35 north latitude and 45.42 west longitude. Its course could take it toward Central Africa.

The U. S. destroyer escort Robert L. Wilson, 500 miles away, was ordered into a chase to attempt interception despite a proclamation of the Portuguese revolutionary government in command that there will be no surrender.

House Fire Battled By Acme Co.

FIRE broke out last night about 11 in the home of Arthur "Red" Gilliland, 21 Prospect St., East Stroudsburg. When Acme Fire Company arrived there were no flames but the house was filled with smoke.

A Gilliland child was asleep at the time and was awakened by the crackling blaze. The family left the house uninjured.

A representative of The Daily Record at the scene of the fire said that firemen removed a portion of the back porch to get at the fire which appeared to center in the partitions of the house. They returned to the fire house at 12:45 a.m. There was no immediate estimate of the damage.

One of the officials of the fire company said the house was being remodeled.

"The firemen are to be congratulated for a job well done," the Record representative said, explaining the firemen were fighting the stubborn blaze in near-zero temperatures.

House Delays Final Vote On New Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Democratic leadership Wednesday put off until next Tuesday a showdown vote on Speaker Sam Rayburn's plan to revamp the Rules Committee.

The surprise action Wednesday took Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, who said the Kennedy administration was interfering at the Cabinet level in the internal affairs of the House.

Rayburn's plan is designed to break a coalition hold on the Rules Committee and make it more friendly to President Kennedy's legislative program. It would raise committee membership from eight Democrats and four Republicans to 10 Democrats and five Republicans. Four Democrats and two Southern Democrats now control many committee actions. Eight Democratic Kennedy backers would call the shots under the Rayburn plan.

Rayburn has staked his prestige on the success of his proposal to wrest control of the committee from its chairman, Howard W. Smith, D-Va.

Rayburn told a news conference the delay in voting was ordered because many members would not be able to be present Thursday, when the test had been set.

Asked if he needed more time to line up votes, Rayburn said "I don't think we'll be in any worse shape next Tuesday than we are now. And I still think we'll win the fight."

Expressway Unit Backs Lawrence

HAZLETON, Pa. (P) — The Anthracite Expressway Association Wednesday night unanimously endorsed Gov. David L. Lawrence's state highway program.

President William Yoder of Mt. Carmel said the association assumed a fair share of the money allocated if the program is adopted would be spent on Anthracite Expressway construction.

The proposed expressway would branch off the Penn Can Highway at Scranton and run to Harrisburg where it would link with the Cumberland Valley Freeway proposed from the Maryland border.

Representatives of Schuylkill, Lehigh, Northumberland, Carbon and Luzerne counties were at the association meeting.

State Draft Call Listed

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania's March draft call for 228 men was announced Wednesday by the State Selective Service Bureau. That compares with a quota of 396 inductees in February and 407 in January. The March, 1960, call was for 452 men.

Group Fails To Act On Wage Tax

TWO MATTERS were explored last night in a 90-minute meeting of the finance committee of the Stroud Union School District.

The possibility of levying a wage tax should the need for additional revenue become pressing was a scheduled for top billing, but it was relegated to second place because of the inability of Herbert B. Crane, school district auditor, to attend the session.

Present were Warren Loney, chairman, and two members of his committee, Board President Asa Hoffman and Mrs. Sophie Stulgaitis; two other board mem-

No Overhaul Planned For Ike's Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders went out Wednesday from President Kennedy that there will be no wholesale overhauls attempted in the budget prepared by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Instructions to hold down on changes followed a White House conference amid Republican predictions that the big issue in this year's session of Congress will be a "battle of the budget."

Kennedy reviewed the new Democratic administration's fiscal policy at a session with Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon; Budget Director David Bell; and Walter Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Afterward, Bell issued a directive to all Cabinet officers and other agency heads laying down a policy that changes in the Eisenhower budget should be "limited to a relatively small number of items on which the President wishes to initiate a major change in the scope or direction of governmental programs."

A broad review of all federal programs will have to wait until next January, when the first all-Kennedy administration budget will be submitted to Congress.

Eisenhower's budget, sent to Congress on Jan. 16, was for the fiscal year starting July 1. It proposes expenditures of $80.9 billion against revenues of $82.3 billion, which would leave an anticipated surplus of almost $1.5 billion.

Congressional Republicans already have started organizing for a budget fight in advance of the revisions Kennedy is expected to propose.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois predicted this will be the overriding issue in the 1961 session. He and House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana arranged to meet weekly with colleagues to map strategy.

2 Men Held Captive By Escapees

TWO ALLENTOWN men were robbed, kidnaped, held captive and released near Saylorsburg yesterday by two men, identified as escapees from Allentown State Hospital.

State Police at Bethlehem identified the victims as Clarence Diehl, 3514 Linden St., and Arthur Bailey, 535 Walnut St., both of Allentown.

Capt. Lawrence Sapudar said the two went to a Summer home owned by Diehl in Hanover Township to make some repairs and found it had been entered.

Inside, they were greeted by two men armed with shotguns. Diehl and Bailey told troopers they were tied up and transported in separate cars, owned by the victims, until they were released near Saylorsburg about 5:40 p.m.

At that time, the armed men took Diehl's car, a 1954 Oldsmobile 98 sedan. It was described as a two-tone vehicle with cream top and green bottom bearing Pennsylvania registration 50368C.

Bailey's car was left where the victims were released. Diehl and Bailey drove to Saylorsburg and called State Police at Bethlehem.

Kidnapers Identified
Sapudar said Diehl and Bailey identified their kidnapers from photographs as Wallace Rice, 18, of 541 Howard Town Rd., Catasauqua, and William Jia-dosz, 19, of 336 Seltz Ave., Easton. The pair escaped from the hospital last Tuesday.

Troopers said Rice and Jia-dosz apparently had been using the Diehl Summer home as a hideout since their escape. They were still at large at a late hour last night.

Rice was described as five feet seven inches tall, weighing 145 pounds, while Jia-dosz is five feet nine inches tall and weighs 165. Both have brown hair and eyes.

El Salvador Junta Revolt Is Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — A four-month old military-civilian junta in El Salvador apparently was overthrown Wednesday by military leaders. The new government claimed it is "eminently anti-Communist."

The details of the revolt still were not known, and both incoming and outgoing messages from El Salvador were halted.

But travelers from El Salvador, reaching Guatemala, reported that the junta was replaced by one headed by Col. Alonso Castillo Navarrete, the minister of defense.

The other members of the junta, according to travelers' reports, were Col. Anibal Portillo and Col. Armando Mena Molina.

Informed sources in Washington said that Castillo, 40, besides serving as a minister under the junta deposed Wednesday, had been in the government of two previous presidents.

He had been an aide to former President Oscar Osorio and a military attaché in a number of European nations under President Jose Maria Lemus.

Portillo was chief of staff under no further details about him or Mena Molina.

In Guatemala City, travelers said a number of leftist leaders had been arrested after the three colonels came to power.

The travelers also reported that students had demonstrated in favor of the ousted junta.

Park Concession Bids Are Open

HARRISBURG (AP) — The State Forests and Waters Department Wednesday called for bids Feb. 7 for food and refreshment concessions at these state parks:

Bendigo, Elk County; Crooked Creek, Armstrong County; Hickory Run, Carbon County; Leonard Harrison, Tioga County.

It also fixed Feb. 14 for receiving bids for concessions at these state parks:

Black Moshannon, Centre County; Promised Land, Pike County; Caledonia, Franklin County, and Gouldsboro, Monroe County.

2 U.S. Fliers Released By Reds; No Concession

MASS OF FLAMES—Dramatic photo speaks for itself as uncontrolled flames completely destroyed the home of John Wilton at Tobyhanna yesterday morning. Firemen from seven companies were helpless due to the lack of water in the area. A "Snow Go" machine from Tobyhanna Signal Depot was finally used to throw snow on the flaming building. See photo on Page 6. (Photo by Al Breymeyer)

Lacked Water Supply

Snow Is Used To Snuff House Fire In Tobyhanna

TOBYHANNA — Firemen from seven fire companies battled for two hours yesterday in the near zero temperature to save the home of John Wilton and his sister Cora. But the battle was lost due to lack of water. The house and contents were listed as a total loss.

The fire was discovered by Wilson at 10:15 a.m. when he smelled smoke. He walked to the rear of the house and saw the washroom burning. His sister,

Cora, was on the phone at the time of the discovery.

Coolbaugh Township Fire Co. was the first on the scene and immediately called (via the fire network radio) for assistance. Companies from the Signal Depot, Mount Pocono, Barrett, Pocono Pines, Gouldsboro, and Tannersville responded.

The big problem was getting water. Ordinarily water would have been drafted from Tobyhanna Creek but the heavy snowfall, recently deposited throughout the county, had been piled high. It was impossible to get to the creek's water supply.

Had there been more suction hose to be used the water could have come from the creek, but the tank trucks worked in relays going to and from the Signal Depot where they were filled from the fire hydrants.

During the fighting operation, the Signal Depot dispatched a "Snow Go" machine to the scene of the fire. The machine in very much like a rotary snow plow. It throws the snow for quite a distance and the direction of the snow can be controlled by moving the chute on the vehicle.

Snow Snuffs Fire
"Firemen placed the machine in position so the snow from along the highway was thrown on the house. The snow blanketed the house and was of great help in fighting the fire," said a spokesman of Tobyhanna Signal Depot.

The two-story wood frame house was located on Prospect St., Route 49, opposite the Catholic Cemetery and across the street from two 5,500 gallon aviation gas storage tanks.

Both Wilton and his brothers and sisters were born in the house.

Wilton is a retired railroad worker and has lived in the house during his 68 years. Both he and his

Disclosure Is Made At JFK News Parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy announced Wednesday night that the Soviet Union—with no concession in return—has released two U.S. fliers shot down over the arctic last July in an RB47 reconnaissance plane.

"The United States government," Kennedy said, "is gratified by this decision of the Soviet Union and considers that this action of the Soviet government removes a serious obstacle to the improvement of Soviet-American relations."

In Moscow, the Soviet Foreign Ministry announced that the Americans were released because of "a sincere desire to usher in a new stage in the relations between the Soviet government and the United States."

After the news conference the White House said Kennedy misstated the time of the fliers' release—that he meant to say a.m. Wednesday instead of 2 a.m. Tuesday.

Asked why the news was delayed until Wednesday night, White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said the Russians had suggested a simultaneous release in both countries after the Americans had actually left Moscow. Officials said word of their departure was not received here until about two hours before Kennedy's news conference.

Bib Disclosure
This news of the fliers was the outstanding disclosure, among a number of others, at the new chief executive's first news conference since he took office Friday. It was a conference that was broadcast live over all radio and TV networks. It shattered precedents, drew what White House officials said was a record 418 newsmen, and lasted 36½ minutes.

On domestic matters, Kennedy told questioners he intends to send special messages to Congress soon on the problems of the gold outflow from the United States, unemployment, and stimulation of the economy.

The setting of the conference was the large auditorium in the new State Department Building—a shift from a crowded treaty room in the Executive Office Building across the street from the White House.

Kennedy walked in at 6:01½ p.m., a minute and a half late. It was 6:38 when Marvin L. Arrowsmith of The Associated Press voiced the "Thank you, Mr. President," which always ends these sessions with reporters. Kennedy looked a bit startled, smiled and replied with a "thank you" of his own.

The release of the fliers, the President said, was discussed in a friendly conference last Saturday night with Llewellyn Thompson, U. S. ambassador in Moscow, and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Kennedy also disclosed that this country has requested more time to prepare for resumption of talks on an atomic test ban at Geneva. These were scheduled to begin again Feb. 7. The President said this country has proposed they be put off until late March.

He volunteered a third announcement—that the United AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Two U.S. fliers, released by the Soviet Union after six months in prison, arrived here Thursday and took off for the United States after a short stop.

The airmen, Capt. Freeman B. Olmstead of Elmira, N.Y., and John R. McKone of Topeka, Kan., were the two surviving members of a six-man crew of a U.S. Air Force reconnaissance bomber shot down by a Soviet fighter on July 1.

States also is increasing gifts of foods to relieve famine conditions in the Congo.

Then, in a free-wheeling question and answer session, covering both domestic and international affairs, the chief executive said that:

Other Issues

—The new administration is not considering restoring diplomatic relations with Cuba at this time.

—With respect to protecting voting rights of the people, a matter of civil rights, the administration "will pursue the problem of providing that protection with all vigor."

—Flights of U2 spy planes over the Soviet Union were suspended by the Eisenhower administration and "I have ordered that they not be resumed." Kennedy said the Russians understand the difference between such flights and those of the RB47 for reconnaissance purposes.

—The U. S. Navy "has not been given instructions to conduct boarding operations" against the seized Portuguese cruise ship Santa Maria. The ship has been spotted and present orders to the Navy are to accompany it.

—It is extremely important that House members have an opportunity to vote on programs he will put forward for the good of the country and "I hope that a small minority will not prevent the majority from voting on those bills."

Sees No Immediate Relief From Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The U.S. Weather Bureau says there's little hope of immediate relief for the severest cold wave of the season now gripping Pennsylvania.

Temperatures ranging between zero and 15 below were predicted for Wednesday night and more frigid temperatures were in the offing for Thursday, the weather bureau said.

Daytime readings in Pennsylvania Wednesday for the most part didn't go much higher than the low teens.

In the north central portion of the state, the mercury hovered around the zero mark all day.

The lowest reading of the day was recorded at Hendersville in Washington County where it was 22 below zero.

Temperatures plummeted to 20 below at Blairsville, 15 below at Van, 12 below at Somerset and Kane, 10 below at Indiana and Pittsburgh, 8 below at Sigel and 5 below at Oil City.

The biting 10 below at Pittsburgh was the lowest reading ever recorded for the date since weather bureau started keeping records in 1874.

The cold spell in Pittsburgh also forced Manufacturers Light and Heat Co. to cut its natural gas supplies to industrial plants in the area by 60 per cent. The firm said the reduction would remain effective until temperatures became moderate. Some light snow flurries were reported Wednesday in the northwestern section of Pennsylvania.

Eleven-45 Years, Older Placed In Jobs In Month

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG—Eleven older workers in the Stroudsburg area — that is, those over 45 years of age — were placed in jobs during the past month, the State Advisory Board on Problems of Older Workers reported yesterday.

According to board records this is a decrease of one for the area in comparison with the preceding month. All of the job placements for the so-called "older workers" were in non-agricultural fields.

Incidentally the report shows that of this number placed, none were in the "65 and over" category.

Pattern Of Area

As a point of comparison this has been the pattern for the area during the past six months in the placement of unemployed 45-and-over workers: July — 94; August — 54; September — 47; October — 18; November — 12, and the past month of December — 11.

New applications filed with the board from older workers in the Stroudsburg area totaled 55 last month—compared with 52 the preceding month and 68 six months ago.

Government Embezzling Link Fails

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP)—The government Wednesday failed to link Harold Eugene Kistner Jr. to a $2-million embezzlement that closed the Sheldon National Bank.

U. S. Commissioner W. M. Forker dismissed a charge of aiding and abetting the embezzlement after a preliminary hearing.

Kistner, 35, fired last week as president of the financially troubled Northern Biochemical Corp. of Sheldon, was immediately released from jail.

Attorney Frank Margolin asked for the dismissal, contending the government showing was entirely inadequate to connect Kistner to the bank shortage. The government had charged Kistner had overdrawn his account by about $21,000.

Burnice Iverson Geiger, 58, assistant cashier and board member of the bank, has admitted the big embezzlement, authorities said. She was a heavy investor in Northern Biochemical.

Meanwhile, an informed source said outside the hearing that Mrs. Geiger kept a running total on adding machine tapes of all the embezzled funds.

The source said that was how federal officials arrived at the $2,126,830.10 figure. The preciseness of the total had puzzled many.

A Federal Bureau of Investigation auditor testified at the hearing that Mrs. Geiger admitted to him she had been taking money from the bank for the last 30 or 40 years.

FBI agent Edward J. Kall Jr. said he found checks totaling about $21,000, written by Mr. and Mrs. Kistner, were paid by the Sheldon National Bank and never charged to their account.

The checks, he said, were written between July 28, 1960 and last Jan. 16, when federal bank examiners found the shortage and closed the bank.

Kistner, his parents and his wife emerged smiling from the hearing room after Forker's decision.

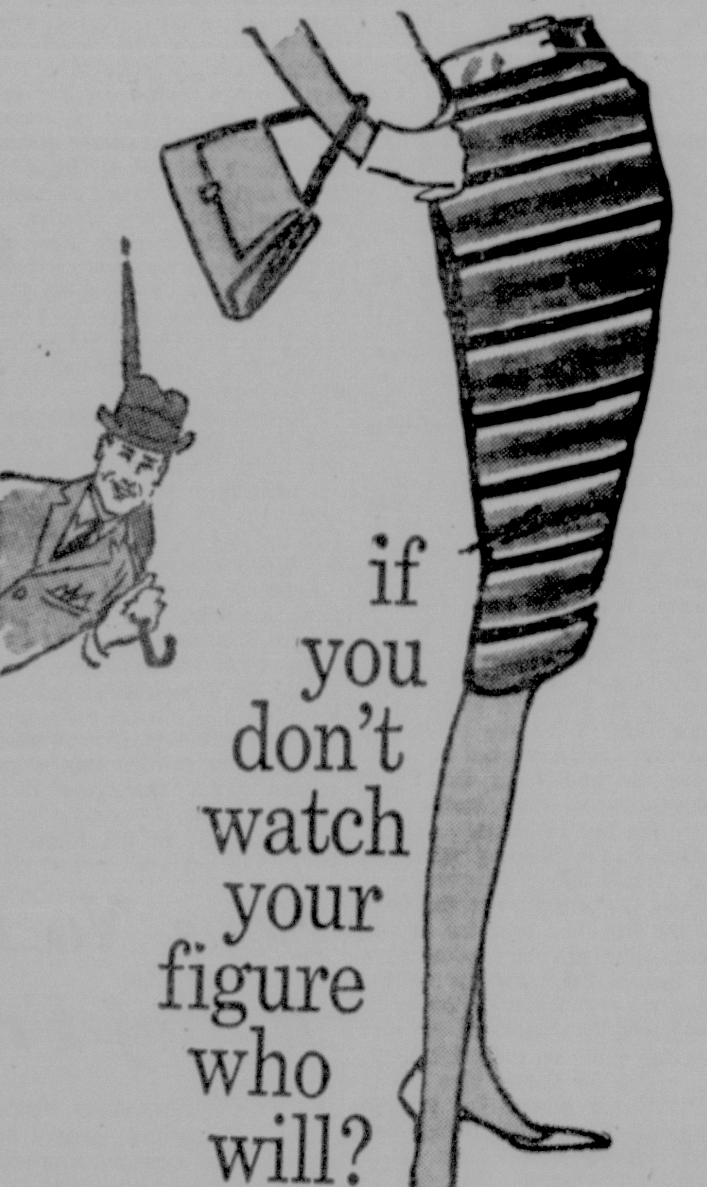

Margolin said his client was "very happy" at the outcome. "He contended all along that he had done no wrong, and he expected dismissal if charges were brought," the attorney said.

Seek Menderes Death Penalty

YASSIADA, Turkey (AP)—The prosecution yesterday demanded the death sentences for ousted Premier Adnan Menderes and three former deputies of his disbanded Democrat party.

State prosecutors said Menderes used "terror tactics" in ordering planned aggression against opposition members of Parliament.

Menderes already is under the shadow of the death penalty, charged with violating Turkey's constitution.

Veterinarian Admits To Death

AUBURN, N. Y. (AP)—Police said Wednesday that Dr. Harry F. Burghardt, a veterinarian active in community affairs, had admitted clubbing his junior partner to death in an office argument.

Burghardt, 39, was charged with first-degree manslaughter in the death Tuesday of Dr. Richard Harter, 33, reportedly killed during a dispute over finances. The defendant was freed in $10,000 bail, pending grand jury action. Police said he had struck Harter in the heat of passion, without intent to kill.

The president of the local Rotary Club, Thomas C. Richardson, said Burghardt was helping to put up banners to promote a club attendance contest at 1:35 Tuesday afternoon.

Thirty-five minutes later, an ambulance attendant found the body of Harter, lying face down in a pool of blood in the office he shared with Burghardt. Harter's skull was fractured.

Burghardt had called police. Several hours later, police said, the stocky, six-footer signed a statement admitting he struck Harter.

The weapon was a lacquered, 30-inch wooden handle to an instrument used to de-horn cattle. Police Chief John T. Costello declined to give any details of the argument other than that it was an exchange of words.

Burghardt sobbed as he waived examination on arraignment before Judge John L. Muskievicz of recorder's court. His wife, Sheryl, mother of the veterinarian's four sons, put up the $10,000 property bail.

Harter was married and the father of two. He had been a veterinarian in Syracuse, Seneca Falls and Fulton before coming to Auburn three years ago.

Both men were graduated from the State College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell University.

Robert Sawyer, a close friend of Burghardt, said the veterinarian was the "kind of person people couldn't help liking. He's a fine person with a wonderful family."

Church Leaders To Meet

BUCK HILL FALLS—Nearly 800 church leaders, both clergy and lay members, will gather here this week for the annual Midwinter Meetings of the Congregational Christian Churches and of units of the United Church of Christ.

Sessions will begin today and continue through Wednesday, February 1.

The annual gathering brings together the executive staffs and boards of directors and executive committee members of every national agency within the Congregational Christian Churches.

Programs will be established and plans set for denominational work in home missions, foreign missions, social action, lay members' activities, promotion and Christian service. An overall denominational budget for promotion of the mission work will be set.

A number of agencies of the United Church of Christ will also meet during the week. The United Church was formed in 1957 by a union of the Evangelical and Reformed Church and the General Council of the Congregational Christian Churches.

A joint meeting of Congregational Christian state Conference Superintendents and presidents of Evangelical and Reformed Synods will be held during the week, bringing together the regional executives of the uniting denominations.

A unique Committee on the Aging, made up of representatives of nearly a dozen organizations and agencies of the uniting denominations, will meet during the week to assess the resources which the United Church will have to tackle problems of the elderly and to make recommendations for further work and study in this area.

12-Year-Old Boy Is Ordained

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—A 12-year-old boy will be ordained a minister Friday by the Pentecostal (Protestant) church.

Francis Flosser Jr., son of the Rev. and Mrs. Francis Flosser, said that "all of a sudden I felt the urge to preach and tell the world about the beloved Lord." This happened six months ago, he said Wednesday, while watching his father make a radio tape for a sermon.

"My dad let me try it and I've been preaching ever since on Saturday mornings to a radio audience," young Flosser continued.

A seventh grade pupil, he hopes to finish high school and become a traveling evangelist. He will take his vows at the Pentecostal Church in nearby Kennett Square.

What do his friends think about it? "Most of my friends," says chubby-faced Francis, "are pretty nice about it. They call me 'Preach.' Those who aren't nice don't bother me."

State House Dems Set Stage For Votes

By JACK LYNCH

HARRISBURG (AP) — House Democrats, working fast under confident leadership, set the stage Wednesday night for crucial votes on Gov. David L. Lawrence's business and gas tax proposals at a post-midnight session.

Major debate on the proposals was put off until the early morning meeting by Republicans who were nettled at the idea of working after midnight this early in the 1961 session.

After the measures were advanced into position for a final vote, Rep. Willard F. Agnew Jr.,

Republican floor leader, said his party would go over the proposals point-by-point and interrogate Democratic leaders after midnight. He said the session might run as late as 6 a.m.

Rep. Stephen McCann, Democratic leader, appeared unruffled by Agnew's statement.

"Didn't Care" He told newsmen he didn't care how long the session lasted, adding:

"I'm in position to pass every measure at the post-midnight session."

The two-cent gas tax increase is designed to yield $74 million yearly, the business tax revisions to produce $23.7 million annually and the 80 per cent accelerated payment of other business taxes to raise $82 million.

"However," he added, "I can't speak for every Republican because about 15 of them didn't attend the caucus."

There were unconfirmed reports some Republicans might go along, principally on the two-cent gasoline tax increase which Gov. Lawrence tied to improvement of the 20,000-mile road system wholly operated by the state.

After the House adjourned at 5:40 p.m., McCann said 108 Democrats would be on the floor for the final vote.

109-99 Edge Democrats hold a 109-99 edge over Republicans in the House where 106 votes are needed for passage of bills.

The Senate was not in session, having adjourned Tuesday until next Monday when it will take up the controversial fair housing bill.

Principal revenue items on the House calendar would:

—Increase the gasoline tax from 5 to 7 cents a gallon. Twenty per cent of the 7th penny would be returned to municipalities for local roads, in addition to the grants they already receive.

—Require 80 per cent prepayment prior to June 1 of these taxes: corporate net income, bank shares, utilities gross receipts and foreign life insurance premiums. This would raise some $82 million, which Lawrence said would be used to help avoid an estimated $86 million deficit in the fiscal period ending May 31.

Eliminate

—Eliminate the 2 per cent commission paid to merchants for collecting the sales tax, to raise $8 million.

—Reduce from 4 to 1½ per cent the commission for affixing tax stamps on cigarettes, to raise $2.5 million.

—Extend the 8-mill bank shares levy to building and loan associations, to raise $4 million.

—Extend to Pennsylvania companies the 2 per cent tax on life insurance premiums collected by foreign insurance firms, to raise $3.2 million.

—Raise the borrowing limit of the Highway and Bridge Authority by $300 million over a six-year federal interstate highway pro-period to speed construction of projects.

Saving Deer Herd

In the grip of deep snow and sub-zero temperatures, lower than the area has experienced in years, Barrett Township might appear to be a sleepy group of communities.

But, like a hornet's nest, poke it with a stick and you'd better have a place to run in a hurry. The hornet's nest in Barrett is currently swarming down on the problem of starving deer.

Reports from over the township had told of the increasing problem it was for deer to find feed. As the herds moved closer to civilization, many things were utilized for feed. The deer became hungry and were foraging on laurel and rhododendron, a positive sign that they were shut off from their natural food supplies.

State game officials could offer little assistance, since present regulations prohibit the commission from providing food for wildlife except on state game lands.

A group of sportsmen rose to the occasion and almost overnight launched "Operation Save a Deer." The movement mushroomed to the point where the entire community is aware of the trouble that deer and other wildlife are facing—and is doing something to ease the situation.

The cooperative effort has met with such success that animal lovers and other interested people are hoping to extend it Pocono-wise.

Barrett has every reason to be proud of its citizens who are spearheading this emergency drive to save one of the area's most valuable assets, the animals and birds that inhabit its scenic woodlands. They are to be congratulated for providing the feed so essential to wildlife in these rugged winter days—and for doing it before the helpless creatures reached the point of starvation.

Opinions Of Other Editors

How Government Grows

No one, we suppose, needs the new $80.9 billion Federal Budget as a reminder that Government grows bigger and more costly each year. But the document does provide some clues as to how and why Government grows.

Obviously, its growth is fed by the ambitions of so-called liberals and radical spenders, who unfailingly advance new public "needs" requiring Federal subsidy. But the new is made worse by being piled atop the old.

For Congress, having created a Federal aid program for one presumed "need" or another, is thereafter loath to undo its handiwork. The subsidy becomes perpetual, and an annual appropriation is voted long after the need for it has disappeared—if, indeed, it ever existed.

Consider the Rural Electrification Administration, an adjunct of the Department of Agriculture born in New Deal days. In 1935, only 11% of the nation's farms had central station electrical service; today, 97% of U.S. farms have it.

Rural electrical cooperatives are growing by leaps and bounds, but only two new customers in 10 are farmers. More than half of the R.E.A. system's total power sales are to non-farm users. If there ever was a need for the R.E.A., it would appear to be long since met.

Yet it plans to spend some $340 million in fiscal 1962 and wants authority to borrow $255 million from the Treasury. By law, it may do so at the rate of 2%, which is less than the Treasury itself must pay for its money.

So, the R.E.A. proposes to expand off-farm electrification, at considerable direct and indirect cost to the taxpayer, and in competition with taxpaying public utilities.

And so this and similarly outmoded subsidies go on and on, and thus does big and wasteful Government grow.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Statement Of Policy

In his Inaugural Address, President Kennedy laid down his policy. Kennedy said:

"Let every nation know, whether it wish us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival and success of liberty."

"This much we pledge — and more."

Then he restated the Monroe Doctrine in his own words:

"To our sister republics south of our border, we offer a special pledge — to convert our good words into good deeds — in a new alliance for progress — to assist free men and free governments in casting off the chains of poverty. But this peaceful revolution of hope cannot become the prey of hostile powers."

"Let all our neighbors know that we shall join with them to oppose aggression or subversion anywhere in the Americas. And let every other power know that this hemisphere intends to remain the master of its own house."

In many respects this statement is as strong, if not stronger, than the original Monroe Doctrine. In fact, Kennedy issued a threat — clearly a threat — to those nations "who would make themselves our adversaries."

"Finally, to those nations who would make themselves our adversary, we offer not a pledge but a request: that both sides begin anew the quest for peace, before the dark powers of destruction unleashed by science engulf all humanity in planned or accidental self-destruction."

"We dare not tempt them with weakness. For only when our arms are sufficient beyond doubt can we be certain beyond doubt that they will never be employed."

If these statements are put together, they become a guiding policy, namely, that the United States will prepare vigorously for war, if it should come; that the United States has no program of appeasement but does have a program of the defense of liberty and territorial independence, for all peoples, particularly for those of the Americas.

The United States seeks peace and is willing to negotiate for peace, but it will not negotiate from fear. He said:

"So let us begin anew — remembering on both sides that civility is not a sign of weakness, and sincerity is always subject to proof. Let us never negotiate out of fear. But let us never fear to negotiate."

Khrushchev understands precisely what all this means. He will excerpt these paragraphs as trine. In fact, Kennedy issued a threat — clearly a threat — to those nations "who would is dealing with a tough hombre, who does not speak soft or act soft. All this will be clear to the Russian."

He is warned that good manners are "not a sign of weakness," but their lack can engender disgust. If Khrushchev believes that Kennedy is a sissy and that he can hurl a shoe at him, he is mistaken.

On the other hand, President Kennedy must recognize that Soviet Russia cannot relinquish its main objective which is to reduce the entire world to an acceptance of Marxist sociology and economics. Whereas Khrushchev masks his intentions behind such generous phrases as competitive co-existence, Mao Tse-tung is more honest and frank.

Mao, as an orthodox Communist, desires a war upon the United States immediately. In the recent great conference in Moscow, Mao's insistence upon war was voted down, but every statement out of Peking establishes his moral rejection of the Kremlin decision. Mao has a famine to look after; otherwise he would not have retreated.

President Kennedy in his Inaugural says he will not make Harry Truman's mistake about "good, old Joe." He said: "Sincerity is always subject to proof." Also, Kennedy is in no hurry:

"All this will not be finished in the first 100 days. Nor will it be finished in the first 1,000 days, nor in the life of this Administration, nor even perhaps in our lifetime on this planet . . ."

Surely, the course toward understanding did not begin with this Inaugural Address. It began when Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill rescued Stalin from defeat and were rewarded by treachery.

It began when the United States gave Soviet Russia $11,000,000,000 to found the industry which is now being used against us. It began at Teheran and Yalta. It was continued at Camp David and before that at the First Summit Conference.

"Let us begin" — is not historically correct. "Let us try again after many failures and disappointments," would have been more accurate.

The Pennsylvania Story

Tax Opposition

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Unquestionably one of the most unpopular moves made by the Lawrence Administration has been its pocketbook-hitting proposal that Pennsylvania's gasoline tax be upped two cents a gallon.

In fact the proposal by the administration caught many a fellow Democratic lawmaker by surprise and when first voiced in earlier party policy circles drew some rather testy and staunch opposition.

It is what is known as a "popular tax" — not because it is popular with those who must pay the levy — but because it smacks an extremely large segment of residents of the state.

The opposition on the part of lawmakers isn't because they personally object to paying the extra two pennies — but because of the political ramifications obviously inherent in such a move.

Lawmakers themselves — on both sides of the political aisle — are well aware of the fact that highways and byways cannot be built and maintained without adequate funds. Rising construction costs and an expanded road building program to meet fantasically expanding present-day needs point only too clearly to the admittedly lamentable fact that more funds are needed.

That is the simple fact in the case — but lawmakers know only too well how thoroughly most of the folks back home refuse to take time to grasp the fact; they see only the two cents a gallon or some 30 cents a tankful being paid out where they didn't have to pay it before.

Insofar as administration Democrats are concerned — they were grudgingly willing enough to go along with a cent-a-gallon increase as proposed by the administration in the 1959 session but which died in a legislative morass.

Again this year they were resigned to going along with a revival of the penny-a-gallon increase — but when the two-cent-a-gallon proposal was offered initially, a goodly portion of the legislative brethren approached the swoning point, among other things.

Once more, it wasn't that they were not in favor of the tax from the standpoint of need — but they shuddered to think of the reaction on the home-front where they must accrue votes to stay in office.

Administration strategists have pressed home the theme that if they want the roads back home the gas tax increase is imperative. All of which is true — but by the same token many a rural lawmaker knows that while he may garner some of the increased funds for his beleaguered constituents, chances are good it will be a mere pittance. The big spending and priority areas do not include many of these so-called rural areas.

The plaint has been offered by some of the more aggressive administration legislative leaders that a Republican lawmaker would do well to go along with the gas tax increase if they too wanted new roads in their areas. Republican anti-administration leaders know full well this for the most part is mere strategy talk — that to meet desires of the legislative brethren would in all probability require something close to a five-cent-a-gallon tax boost!

The simple fact is that the increase in the gas tax is more than needed if Pennsylvania hopes to remotely keep abreast of even minimum contemporary highway demands. Lawmakers on both sides of the aisle generally are willing to go for the increased levy, fully aware of the needs.

But, they know too that insofar as the folks at home are concerned the story is decidedly different. For legislative Democrats it boils down pretty simply to whether they prefer to incur the wrath of their folks back home or that of their Democratic administration in the front office here on Capitol Hill!

It's a difficult choice at best no matter in what light it might be viewed — and all for two cents!

Social Security Guide

Q. Is it necessary that I have reached 65 before I check my social security?

A. No. We suggest that you check your social security before you reach retirement age (age 62 for women, age 65 for men) or before you plan to retire.

Q. How early should I come in to inquire?

A. We suggest you contact your social security office at any time within the three months before you retire. We can advise you about the amount of your benefits and the retirement provisions of the law so you can make your plans for retirement.

Q. How long does it take to get a check after I file my claim?

A. There is no way of telling exactly. It is always necessary for us to secure a record of your earnings from our central office, which usually takes a week or more. Simultaneously, we obtain the other proofs and information required, make a determination, and forward the case to the payment center for review. The check is then issued by the Treasury Department. These actions usually take about a month and seldom more than three months.

The Allen-Scott Report

New Frontiers Exhibit

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
Washington — Secretary of Commerce Hodges is ready to unveil the first exciting "New Frontiers" venture of President Kennedy's administration.

He will announce the joint plans of the administration and private industry to establish a permanent U.S. scientific and industrial exhibit on the outskirts of Washington.

In his first appearance before the blue ribbon Business Advisory Council of the Commerce Department this week, Hodges will hail the multi-million dollar exhibit as the United States' answer to the Soviet Union's trade exhibit in Moscow that now attracts thousands of foreign officials and travelers every day.

Scheduled to be built at Bolling Air Force Base on the banks of the Potomac River here, the U.S. exhibit is to be used as a world showcase for this country's scientific and industrial products.

Already, 30 of the nation's biggest corporations plan to take part in the joint venture by constructing vast show places for their products there. For example, one automobile manufacturer plans a permanent exhibit that will cost $10,000,000.

The "New Frontiers" exhibit, as it is being called, is scheduled to be ready by 1964. The project will be financed largely by private capital raised by a non-profit corporation organized by the major exhibitors. The government will make a small contribution, including the lease of the air base to the non-profit group for a nominal fee.

The exhibit is expected to attract a million foreign visitors a year to Washington. Its displays of U.S.-made products, ranging from new cars to satellites, is designed to bring U.S. firms millions of dollars in new foreign business.

World Trade Center — Secretary Hodges picked the blue-ribbon Business Advisory Council to reveal the exhibit plans because of the strong support the idea received from some of the panel's members.

For instance, Ralph Cordner, President of General Electric Company and BAC chairman, is one of the prime movers behind the exhibit. He played a major role in helping Hodges obtain backing for the exhibit from a number of large corporations.

Aides report that Hodges looks on the exhibit as the cornerstone for a new U.S. trade offensive that could eventually make Washington the international trade capital of the world.

Notes: The original idea for a permanent U.S. scientific and industrial exhibit near the capital was the brain child of James Lanigan, former campaign aide of Adlai Stevenson. Lanigan, a New York attorney, is slated to be appointed as Stevenson's deputy to the United Nations. He is a native of Greeley, Nebraska.

Parting Shot — Before departing from Washington, former Army Secretary Wilbur Brucker took the Army's fight for more manpower directly to Congress.

Meeting privately with a number of key congressmen and their aides, Brucker warned that "The $70,000 strength currently authorized for the Army is marginal to execute the vital global responsibility assigned to it — responsibilities which are growing constantly greater, rather than diminishing."

He called on the legislative group to back a boost in army manpower to 925,000, saying:

"It would be a very grave mistake to accept more rapid modernization at the cost of a further diminution in the size of the Army — as has been suggested as a budgetary possibility — when, in fact, we feel that an increase should be made. I am firmly convinced that the manpower level of the Army ought to be no lower than 925,000."

Striking out at proposals to reorganize the Defense Department, Brucker charged that "The abolition of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Departments of Army, Navy and Air Force, together with their secretaries, would be disastrous."

"If that proposal is adopted, the service chiefs will be mere straw bosses for the Chief of Joint Staff," he said. "As I see it, changes of this nature could destroy the integrity, character, and living soul of the individual services, though their bodies remained. As a result, morale and esprit de corps, which are such vital factors in war, could reach unprecedented depths."

After The Ball — Retiring Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell is really taking only a "vacation" from the Washington scene. Even if his professional assignments as labor-management consultant should prove to be provincial in their demands, he expects to be a frequent caller at the White House. Labor considers Mr. Mitchell a major force in a long range labor-management peace program. Goldberg has President Kennedy's assurance that Mr. Mitchell will be ever welcome as a top adviser.

Despite his disclaimers, the Democratic National Committee now expects to clear close to $1 million on the Gala show held during the inauguration ceremonies, despite the big snow that cut down the crowd.

Richard Nixon, former GOP Vice President, is telling friends that he turned down 30 offers in the past four weeks, each of which would have paid him more than $150,000 a year. To confidants he adds: "How I make my living between now and '64 may determine the outcome of the next election."

Haiti Banker Finds Big Weather Differential

EDWARD Racine—from the island of Haiti—finds 90 degrees has more meaning in weather than it does in angles. This was the difference in temperature yesterday between Stroudsburg and his native land of Haiti.

Racine was a visitor and analyzer of the First-Stroudsburg National Bank, Stroudsburg, yesterday as part of his post graduation studies. The Haitian is working on his Masters Degree at the Wharton School of Finance. He has selected a thesis on Consumer Banking which must be completed before graduation.

On behalf of the First-Stroudsburg National Bank, Charles Bensinger, chairman of the board of directors, invited Racine to the Stroudsburgs and offered him this opportunity to observe the operations and methods of a comparatively small bank as opposed to the impersonal, "conveyor-belt" type operation of the large city banks.

During his tour, Racine was escorted by Gerald Shanley, Jr., of the bank's Business Development Department. The tour included a discussion of the processing of automobile, FHA improvement loans, appliance and personal loans, Donald Dimmick, head of the Consumer Loan Department outlined the operations of that department as the study continued. In the phase of small loans and home mortgages, the Haitian was given a general discussion of operations by Joseph Lisicky, vice president and comptroller of the institution.

Racine arrived in Stroudsburg yesterday morning from Philadelphia. The bitter cold didn't affect him too much. But it was unmistakable that he preferred the climate of his native land.

During his one-day visit, Racine was amazed to find the many functions of the bank. It is not common in Haiti for banks to deal in auto financing, mortgage loans for building and

Local Firm Celebrates First Year

THE Nixon-Austin-Ireland Corp., of 33 N. Seventh St., Stroudsburg, serving as fund raising and public relations consultants, is celebrating its first anniversary this week. It is the only firm of its kind in the area.

W. V. Nixon, president, reported an impressive list of clients during the year. He stated, "our biggest success to date has been at Findlay College, Findlay, Ohio, where we were employed to direct a development program for $500,000 and where totaled gifts now exceed $850,000."

"A second major program has been launched at Muhlenberg College where we have listed five million dollars as needed during the 1960's," Nixon reported.

The firm's services include capital fund direction, consultation services for fund raising, public relations, surveys and studies designed to produce objective analyses of fund raising potential and public relations requirements.

Among the clients are YMCA, YWCA, Allentown; Good Shepherd Home, Allentown; The Allegheny Lutheran Home, Hollidaysburg; Monroe County General Hospital, East Stroudsburg; two fraternities from Allegheny College; Racing, Incorporated, Stroudsburg; Woman's Hospital, Philadelphia; and Water Resources Association.

Associated as principals are Paul M. Ireland of Independence, Mo., and Clair E. Austin, Sr., who resides at King St., Stroudsburg.

Roland E. Fenz, an associate director of the firm resides at Fifth and Wiley Sts., Stroudsburg.

Nature Of Work

Nixon explained that "many people are totally unaware of the nature of the work involved in our type of business. Likewise they are often confused on the fees charged. Our firm, like other reputable fund raising organizations, has a fixed fee, based on the number of weeks and kind of services and personnel required to meet the clients' objectives."

Millage Stable S-burg's Budget Set At $265,585

STROUDSBURG Borough Council last night authorized advertising of a budget calling for expenditures of $265,585 in 1961 with no increase in tax millage. It is subject to amendment until adoption, probably at the March meeting.

The budget lists cash on hand and anticipated revenues of $265,585 for the year.

Principal items of income include $80,657 in real estate and per capita taxes, based on last year's 15-mill tax on real estate and $5 per capita levy; $48,000 in parking meter receipts, and $38,775 in grants from state, county and national governments including $20,000 estimated as Monroe County's share of the current flood control work.

Major items of expenditures include $48,700 for operation of the department; $35,650 for street department operations and maintenance; $23,000 capital expenditure for the street department, including $23,000 for paving, curbing and storm sewers on W. Main St.; $14,530 for the borough's two fire departments, and $14,000 for street lighting.

Stands To Recover

On the W. Main St. project, the borough stands to recover approximately $16,000 of the cost, leaving a net cost to the borough of $7,000.

The budget also calls for cutting in half the amount paid by the borough to Stroudsburg Municipal Authority as fire hydrant rental. The borough currently pays $50 each for 100 hydrants. Council passed an official request that this figure be reduced to $25 a hydrant. It is expected the authority will grant the request, amounting to $2,500 yearly.

Without Assessment

Borough Manager Harold E. Snyder pointed out that the estimate of income from taxes was prepared without occupational assessments, which have not yet been released by Monroe County Commissioners.

Edward E. Lawson, council president, told the group: "I feel it is very important that we hold the line on taxes this year."

Councilman Joseph W. Kovarik, a member of the police and fire committee, urged Snyder to try to find an additional $2,100 in revenue somewhere to cover a proposal, advanced by Kovarik, that the borough pay Blue Cross and Blue Shield premiums for members of the police department. The figure is Snyder's estimate of the cost of assuming the payments.

The anticipated expenditures of $265,585 compared to $246,070 in last year's budget.

Lauds Department

Lawson also took the occasion to direct Burgess Edward A. Doran to relay to the police department the thanks of council for the cooperation shown by the police with the streets department in clearing streets after the recent heavy snow storms.

Snyder, pointing out to council that he had budgeted only $6,000 for snow removal this year, remarked that his figure might be "a little optimistic."

Rattlesnake Noises Are Described To Kiwanians

"IF YOU are walking through the woods in the Summer and hear a sound like a locust, the odds are that it's a rattlesnake and not a locust."

"Don't panic. Stand still until the snake rattles again. Then move in the opposite direction. Remember this: a rattlesnake won't attack anything not moving and more than 18 inches away."

Such was the advice passed on to members of the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club yesterday by P. J. Shoemaker, of Cresco, whose unusual hobby is hunting snakes in the wilds of Pike and Monroe Counties.

He presented a series of colored slides he had taken of rattlesnakes during the last 10 years and supplied a running commentary explaining many little known facts about the reptiles.

He said, for example, that a rattlesnake is cleaner than an eel, since it eats nothing but live food. Shoemaker acknowledged, however, that he had never tasted rattlesnake meat — considered a delicacy by many people — despite the large number he had captured and killed.

Not Coward

While a rattlesnake is not aggressive, neither is it a coward, the speaker said, adding he respects them for what they are. The best season to hunt snakes is in the Spring or the Fall when they are more sluggish than in the Summer.

Their poison is potent, Shoemaker said, explaining that it will kill a mouse in two seconds and a small squirrel in only five seconds.

While a rattlesnake 42 to 48 inches is considered of good size, the speaker said he had killed them as large as 66 inches. In another reference to length, Shoemaker said that no enclosure which is open at the top is considered safe unless it is higher than the snake is long since it can support itself against the side and escape over the top while literally standing on its tail.

Familiar Position

The slides showed live snakes in their familiar striking position, with head and upper body in the shape of an "S" and also female snakes which, when killed and opened were found to contain as many as 15 eggs.

Shoemaker was introduced by Charles Gordon, program chairman. Elwood C. German, president, announced the election of Burt Sylvester, jeweler, to club membership.

STATE Police from the Stroudsburg barracks investigated a two - truck accident yesterday between Sciota and McIlhenny on Route 209. They reported no injuries.

The drivers of the trucks were identified by police as Doranso A. Marconi, 45, of Wilkes - Barre; and Ralph Brundage, 47, of Bloomsburg.

Marconi told police that he was traveling west and had slowed down for a snow drift in the road. As he ran into the drift the trailer jack-knifed and was hit by the truck driven by Brundage, who was traveling east.

Slight Damage

Damage to the vehicles was estimated at $150 to the Marconi trailer and $300 to the Brundage tractor.

The accident occurred at 1 a.m. and had the highway blocked until 6 a.m., police added.

Police Investigate Accident

STROUDSBURG Police investigated a two-car accident yesterday at the intersection of Bryant St. and Park Ave. The accident happened at 4:55 p.m. No injuries were reported.

Identified as the drivers were Harry L. Johns, 43, and employee of LaBar's Nursery, Stroudsburg; and Donald Nickman, 23, Delaware Water Gap.

On Park Ave

Nickman was traveling south on Park Ave, and Johns was going west on Bryant St.

Police said Johns did not stop for the stop sign, located on Bryant St., and hit the Nickman vehicle.

Damage to both vehicles was estimated at a $500 total.

Police will continue the investigation today.

Deer Herds Seen In Double Jeopardy By Heavy Snowfall

BARRETT — "The deer herds are in double jeopardy due to the heavy snowfall," warned John Spencer, Mt. Pocono Game Protector at the meeting of the Barrett Sportsmen's Association.

Because of the depth of the snow, they cannot get food and are in danger of starving. Some are already weakened. Dogs running the deer in the deep snow have an easy catch both from the weather conditions and the weakened state the deer are in from lack of feed.

The Barrett Sportsmen formed spontaneously to prevent the deer herds from dying off. Quick action to supplement the work already being done by the State Game Commission was begun in the project of "Help Feed the Deer." All monies received by donation in the canisters throughout Barrett Twp. and by mail to "A Dollar Will Save a Deer" in care of Russ Dann, Treas., Canadensis, Pa.

will go to buy feed to be placed at feeding stations throughout the township.

To Drop Food

Arrangements are being made with the Tobyhanna Signal Depot for the use of helicopters to drop food at inaccessible places and planes may be used to spot the herds.

On State Game Lands, a program of browse cutting is continuing, but as there are some large tracts of land in Barrett that do not border the Game preserves, the Barrett Sportsmen in co-operation with the Game Commission have set up the emergency measures.

Feed already distributed by truck to some of the herds is gone, and more must be placed for the herds. While the men were in the woods with the trucks dropping the bales by the road, blowing the horn served as a call; the deer came out of the woods to find the feed.

Arrangements Made

Arrangements were made for feed to be delivered in Canadensis by Carl Schoenagle, Greentown at the price of 45¢ a bale. Farmers are also aware of the danger to the flock of deer in the area.

As the danger is not only in Barrett, but all of northeastern Pennsylvania and parts of New York and New Jersey, it is hoped by the Sportsmen that other areas will follow the precedence and form other groups to aid the states in caring for the deer at this critical time.

Soviet-America Break Reported Near Repairing

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

The break in meaningful communication between the United States and the Soviet Union, which gave the world a fine case of jitters during the last half of 1960, is about to be repaired.

Already the American ambassador and Premier Khrushchev have been talking about it.

Reports that the United States will seek a delay in resumption of nuclear test ban negotiations at Geneva suggest a determination to lay down something concrete to talk about, at least until there can be a renewal in the spring or summer of the disarmament negotiations from which the Soviets walked out last year.

It seems quite likely that the U.S. nuclear delegates will take with them, when they do go, a test ban program supported by a background decision to resume testing if the Soviets continue their evasive tactics, and let the world place the blame. The United States is no longer willing to give the Soviets everything they have asked for—a ban without inspection. This is, in effect, what has happened under the voluntary ban.

Resumption

Resumption of U.S. tests is likely to be the outcome. Many Western experts believe the Soviet Union already has been violating the temporary ban. The Communist manifesto in November spoke of resumption of U.S. tests as a foreign conclusion. The United States needs the tests.

But by then Berlin and disarmament are likely to be the issues, and at least the blame which the world attached to the United States for the long vacuum in U.S.-Soviet relations will have been dispersed.

Although a ban on nuclear testing has appeared to be the most likely issue on which the two nations might reach some agreement, the hope has never been very bright. And there is an important circle of American opinion where the hope has been just the other way.

Khrushchev's speech Jan. 6 also confirmed in many minds the conviction that there will be no agreements about anything unless it is something the Communists think will promote their cause.

A psychological desire to avoid resignation to such a conviction has probably been one of the greatest handicaps of free world negotiators throughout the cold war. A safe way to repair the communications break is to present the Soviet, in such matters, with a series of programs which serve to reveal, when refused, the falsity of their propaganda.

Woman Favors Jail Cell

CHRISTIANA, Pa. (AP)—Miss Ethel Ryder says she was willing to spend five days in jail for not giving up her suspended driver's license "but the publicity hurt my aged mother so much that I gave up."

Miss Ryder, 36, spent 16 hours in jail before a brother paid her fine of $50 and costs Wednesday. "I was willing to stay in jail because I feel I was right," she told newsmen as she left.

Miss Ryder was convicted of speeding. The Pennsylvania Department of Revenue ordered state police to pick up the license at her home. She refused and was taken into custody Tuesday night, charged with violating the state motor code.

She pleaded guilty when arraigned before Justice of Peace Louis Bair, but maintained she had been negotiating with the state to keep her license.

Bair gave her a choice of the fine or five days in jail. She said she would go to jail because she couldn't pay.

Extension Granted To Schools

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Industrial Board Wednesday received a request for an extension of the deadline for changes it ordered to bring four Hazle Twp. schools up to minimum state fire safety regulations.

Frank Dushanko, supervising principal of the Hazle Twp. school district, asked the board to postpone the deadline until Sept. 1, 1961. He said the building repairs ordered by the board will be completed by that time.

The board took the request under consideration. It said it will announce its decision at a later date.

The order originally cited five schools in the district but Dushanko told the board one of the schools, the Harwood school, has been closed permanently. He said the district is making

Man, 26, Killed In Collision

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa. (AP)—David W. Miles, 26, New Castle, was killed Wednesday when the truck he was driving smashed into the rear of a maintenance vehicle on the Pennsylvania Turnpike near here.

The maintenance truck stopped in a snowbank about 400 feet away. Two turnpike employees who were in the maintenance vehicle—Ernest Shuman and Harry Mohr, both Newburg R.D. 1—escaped injury.

Turnpike officials reported that the maintenance truck carried a warning sign and had a flashing red light. They said the collision happened east of the Blue Mountain Tunnel on a section of a straight, dry road.

Miles was driving a tractor-trailer loaded with steel.

The Fire Co. responded to an alarm Thursday night at the home owned by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Heller, where they resided until moving recently to Stroudsburg. No service was needed, as it was reported that the fuse box was all that caused the smoke. The new warning system seems to be working well. It was recently put into service by the Women's Auxiliary.

Consider Plans HANOVER, Germany (AP)—West German officials are considering plans for construction of an electronically controlled super-prison for incorrigible convicts.

HAZLETON — Gov. David L. Lawrence was asked yesterday to join in negotiations between the Northeastern Pennsylvania dress manufacturing industry and the International Ladies Garment Workers Union now discussing a new contract.

Victor C. Diehm, president, Northeast Pennsylvania Industrial Development Commission, made the request following reports that the imposition of certain contract conditions might kill off the regional industry now employing thousands at substantial wages. Diehm's telegram to Governor Lawrence follows: "Communities throughout the hard pressed Northeastern Pennsylvania region are generating great concern over reports growing out of contract negotiations between dress manufacturers here and the International Ladies Garment Workers Union. Several indications reflect the possibility that if certain types of contracts are concluded, the out-of-New York City dress manufacturing industry could be wiped out. While specific contract conditions are normally the domain of the negotiators, the substantial contribution of the dressmaking industry to the economy of Northeastern Pennsylvania is of such vital impact that deep concern is manifest when any mention is made of possible loss of employment. We suggest your immediate entrance into the negotiating picture to insure that there is no job loss, and possible job gains, resulting from early agreement to a new contract. The NPIDC official who was a member of former Governor John S. Fine's textile industry study group stated that the thousands of jobs and millions in annual payrolls must be retained in Northeastern Pennsylvania at all cost. He said that in addition to Governor Lawrence, NPIDC is ready to appeal to federal officials to enter the picture."

Weather Outlook For 5 Days

Extended forecasts for Jan. 26 through Jan. 30

Western Pennsylvania—Temperatures will average 12 to 15 degrees below normal but with slight moderation last part of this week. Precipitation is expected to average about 1/4 inch melted, occurring as occasional light snow or snow flurries during the period with locally higher amounts near Lake Erie.

Western New York—Temperatures will average 10 to 14 degrees below normal but with slight moderation last part of this week. Precipitation will average about 1/4 inch melted, occurring as snow flurries during the period with locally greater amounts near Lake Erie and Lake Ontario.

Middle Atlantic States—Temperatures will average 10 to 15 degrees below normal. Quite cold Thursday, moderating somewhat on Friday. Colder again over the weekend followed by warmer Monday. Some snow about Friday with little or no precipitation through the remainder of the period.

Eastern Pennsylvania, southeastern New York and New Jersey—Temperatures are expected to average 8 to 10 degrees or more below normal, remaining quite cold throughout the period. Precipitation may total one-tenth to three-tenths inch in the north and one-tenth to six-tenths inch in the south, occurring as snow about Friday and snow flurries in northern areas Saturday or Sunday.

Distressed Areas Get Preference

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department hasn't been carrying out fully directive to give preference to distressed areas in awarding government contracts, Rep. James E. Van Zandt, R-Pa., said Wednesday.

In a statement, Van Zandt said despite orders from former President Eisenhower the department placed only $6.7 million worth of orders in chronic unemployment areas last year.

"This means," that less than one percent of the total Defense Department procurement was allocated to distressed areas," Van Zandt said.

The Pennsylvanian said he was urging Congress to act without delay on his bill to require the Defense Department procurement agencies to award contracts to distressed areas "whenever such action is compatible with the national defense."

Van Zandt said his bill is in line with President Kennedy's thinking on the subject. He pointed out it would not empower defense agencies to pay higher price to firms in distressed areas, but would require encouragement of firms in these areas to participate fully in procurement by making maximum use of competitive bids and set-asides.

Employment Bureau Found 252,147 Non-Ag Positions

THE State Bureau of Employment Security found 252,147 non-agricultural jobs for Pennsylvania workers in 1960, according to a statement made by John P. Dougherty, manager of the Stroudsburg local Employment Service office.

Dougherty said the comparable job placement figure for 1959 was 257,799. He added that non-agricultural placements in the Stroudsburg local office area for 1960 totaled 2,188. This compared with the 2,510 local office placements in 1959. The Bureau set a new record of placements for a year in the agricultural field by making 143,826 placements of farm workers. This compares with the 1959 total of 242,321 placements, the previous yearly high.

Agricultural placements in the Stroudsburg local office area totaled 1,011 in 1960. State-wide figures show more placements of older workers in 1960 than 1959, Dougherty declared. The Bureau found 56,974 jobs for workers 45 years of age and over last year, nearly 3,000 above the 1959 total. Placements of handicapped workers declined slightly to 22,900 last year.

A total of 81,293 persons were given tests during 1960, an increase of 3 per cent over 1959. This included tests given in high schools and local Employment Service offices for general aptitudes, as well as specific aptitudes and proficiency tests given job applicants as part of a scientific screening process before referring them to employers. Counseling interviews increased to 152,522 for the year.

Emphasis On Recruiting
In achieving the record number of agricultural placements in 1960, the Bureau placed increased emphasis on recruiting local labor for jobs on the State's farms. Efforts to bring workers from urban areas to the fields through the "day-haul" method were expanded. A number of day-haul programs were operated for much longer periods during the year, thus providing more continuous employment for many seasonal workers.

Greater emphasis on the use of local labor for seasonal farm work has resulted in a decline

Moravians Elect Woman

NEWFOUNDLAND — The Moravian Church council, meeting in the annual session, elected for the first time in the church's history, a woman trustee, and also named a new elder.

Mrs. C. Allen Edwards, South Sterling, was named to the five-year term as trustee, succeeding John Wesley Akers, who had served in the post for 20 years.

Lewis Osborn, South Sterling, was elected to a six-year term as elder, succeeding Friend Uhl, Newfoundland, who had been a member of the board for 27 years.

Elders include the Rev. Larry T. Lindenmuth, who serves as chairman; Arthur Kramer; Wardell Robacker, secretary; and Mr. Osborn. Trustees are Levine Robacker, Philip Feigel, Robert Beehn, Carroll Fetherman and Mrs. Edwards.

In the use of migrant labor from the South and Puerto Rico in recent years. In 1957 about 10,000 out-of-state workers were used in seasonal farm work.

Pep-Pill Bills Are Introduced

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Lawrence Administration yesterday introduced two Senate bills providing alternate penalties for the unauthorized possession or sale of so-called pep pills, drugs of the amphetamine groups.

The proposals were sponsored by Sens. Anthony DiSilvestro, D-Philadelphia; Albert R. Pechan, R-Armstrong; Robert D. Fleming and George J. Sarraf, both D-Allegheny.

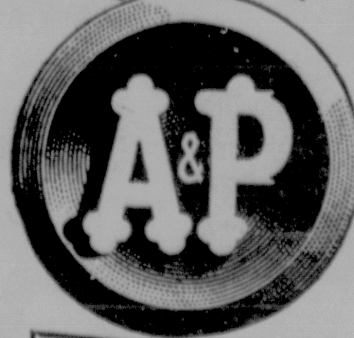

One of the bills would classify drugs of the amphetamine group as dangerous drugs under the state's Dangerous Drugs Act. Violation of the act is a felony with a fine of up to $1,000 and up to one year in prison for the first offense.

The other proposal would include amphetamines in a state law prohibiting the sale or possession of narcotics. Violation of this law is a felony and is subject to stiffer penalties.

The maximum penalty for the first conviction of possessing narcotics is a $2,000 fine and two to five years in prison. For the sale of narcotics, the maximum first offense penalty is a fine of $5,000 and five to 10 years in prison.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

There have been many times since the Big Freeze set in that I have thought wistfully "Wouldn't it be wonderful to be back in Rome?" And after these last two days I have a lot of people wishing right along with me — that I were back in Rome, I mean. At least they wouldn't have to listen to me.

Three speeches in two days is going a little heavy — for the listeners at any rate. I'm thinking of offering a medal to Mrs. A. A. Holbrook. This is the sixth time she's heard me — on the same subject. Wow!

And Wow! was just what I said when we walked into Mary Sterner's house on Tuesday night. It was her Sunday school class and all day long I'd expected they'd call it off. It was late when we got there and one lonely car was parked on the hill on Berwick Heights.

Anyway there'll be enough for a bridge game I consoled Ruth Brown as we lugged the projector, slides and screen up the steps. We opened the door and stepped into a room crowded with at least 50 people. It was a shock — as if they'd suddenly materialized out of nowhere. I still haven't figured out how they got there — a few, on foot or by benefit of husbands.

The Leisure Hour girls turned out in force, too, yesterday afternoon. One of their cutest questions was "How is it for widows in Italy?" Regretfully, I had to tell them: "The same as it is here — too many of them."

Though I don't know what they're complaining about — when they join the MORA Club for refreshments the proportion of men is about two to one. The proportion's perfect — it's the distribution that's awry. What they need is a mixer-upper. But I'm not volunteering for anything for a week at least.

If You Want Promotion Add Something Extra

Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary defines the word "extra" as "beyond or greater than what is due, usual or necessary."

When we stop to think about it, the institution or person that has made a habit of giving more than is necessary is invariably the successful one, although it may not always seem so at first. In the highly competitive business world of today, "service" has become a definite factor and "service" is no more than extra benefits offered the customer.

Magic Word
On the personal level, there is magic in the word "extra," too.

The executive hiring an assistant will speak of "initiative." The sales manager interviewing a salesman will speak of "ingenuity." The woman selecting a husband will speak of "consideration."

In the end, they are all talking about the same thing: the willingness and ability to give more than is necessary.

Hearing Type
We have all known the "I'll do what I was hired for and that's all" type of worker, who hoards her time and abilities lest she be called on to do something extra. Most of the time she does not realize that by enclosing herself in barbed wires she is not only fencing herself in but fencing others out, as well.

I know two women, now in their middle 40s, who began as file clerks in a company I worked for some 20 years ago. One was of the type I have just been discussing. She did what she was paid for and no more. She was convinced that people would play you for a sucker and take advantage of you if you gave them a chance.

May Be True
This, of course, may well be the case if you are going to give extra. You will find a certain number of people who will try to take advantage of you. But you will also find a certain number who will value you and promote you and give you plenty of extras in return.

This woman is now, at age 45, still a file clerk and, although she has had some annual raises, her salary is nothing to write home about. Her work is dead-end, dull, but nobody has ever taken advantage of her.

The other woman I speak of went out of her way from the very beginning to deliver extras. On dull days, she carefully read the letters that came to her for filing. She thought up various form letters that would in some way eliminate a great deal of work. On other dull days she read a rough draft of each of these form letters and submitted them to her department head.

Dinner Marks Installation Of St. Ann's

Barrett — At the dinner Saturday, Jan. 14, held at Uguccioni's Restaurant, Mountainhome, Mrs. Michael Chopko, Monroe-Pike Deanery president, installed St. Ann's Altar and Rosary Society officers for the coming year.

Mrs. Mary Rush took office as president; Mrs. Charles Scheim, vice president; Mrs. Carl Texter, treasurer and Mrs. Philip Pasquini, secretary.

Rev. William Cusick and Monsignor McHugh also attended the dinner installation.

Plans for the coming year included: dinner-dance, April; bake sale, May; card party, June; bazaars, July and August, and a card party in November.

Homay-Arcadipane

A marriage license has been applied for from N. Henry Fenner, Monroe County clerk of orphans' court, by Charles J. Homay, Phillipsburg, N. J., and Joyce Marie Arcadipane, Easton.

Continued Work
She continued her "extra" work, however, because it was an exercise for her own mind and was more fun than staring out the window all day.

Eventually, her supervisor—who carried his bad habit over into

To give "Baker's Dozen" Wins Success In Any Field

all areas of the office work—was found out and replaced by a man who valued workers with initiative and ingenuity.

It Paid Off
Within four or five years, this girl was writing form letters for many of the departments of the company.

When she married, she left her job and stayed home with her family. Later, there came a time when she needed extra money and wanted work she could do at home. She approached her old employer and found him more than happy to farm out work to her.

In other words, by giving exceptional service, she was able to work out an exceptional deal. (If you would like a pamphlet called "Pointers To The Habit Of Success" send me a self-addressed stamped envelope in care of this newspaper.)

HOMEMAKER'S AWARD being presented to Adele Ewe, Pleasant Valley High School's Homemaker of Tomorrow by Mrs. Jeannette Mitchell, right.

Leisure Hour Club Compares Life In Italy

The Leisure Hour Club had a large attendance for their meeting yesterday afternoon at the YMCA when Mrs. Horace Westbrook of the Daily Record was their guest speaker.

Basing her talk on her summer in Italy, Mrs. Westbrook compared the daily routine of women in Italy with their counterparts in the United States, and answered questions from the members.

At the business meeting, the Leisure Hour Club voted to accept the invitation of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. to hold their February meeting at the Service Center. Tentative plans were also made for a bus trip to the Philadelphia Flower Show in March.

After the meeting members joined the MORA Club for refreshments in the banquet hall.

New Officers Elected By Grace Class

Bettie Blair was elected president of the Junior Crusaders Class of the Grace Lutheran Sunday School, East Stroudsburg, to serve for a six-month term.

Also elected were Nancy Ellenberger, vice president; Linda Bosman, secretary; Sharon Smith, corresponding secretary; Amy Wunder, treasurer; Georgiana Hines, librarian, and Kay McNeil, assistant librarian.

The class joined together in

Scores High In Skills, Attitudes

Adele Ewe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ewe Sr. of McMichael, has been awarded the Homemaker of Tomorrow award for the Pleasant Valley School where she is a senior.

Having received the highest score in a written examination on homemaking knowledge and attitudes, she becomes a candidate for the state award to be announced in March.

Miss Ewe plans to attend East Stroudsburg State College and major in the elementary education curriculum.

donations to the folding-door fund and the Christmas tree fund of the Church school.

Recently, the girls presented a new nylon Christian flag to the main sanctuary of the Sunday School. Their social activities include fellowship breakfasts and a summer picnic.

Girls in the 12, 13, and 14 year age group are invited to join the group on Sundays at 9:45 at the Sunday school.

Snowball Dance, School Occupy Coolbaugh PTA

Tobyhanna — A Snow Ball Dance for this Saturday night and long-range plans for the new Pocono Mountains Joint School both came up for discussion at the January meeting of the Coolbaugh Parent-Teachers Assn.

Planned as a community affair, the Snow Ball Dance will be held Saturday night at the school auditorium and will be open to both adults and teenagers. There will be an orchestra to provide music for both round and square dancing, and there will be special entertainment and refreshments.

Mrs. William Post, Mrs. James Cadue and Mrs. Berne Cramer are co-chairmen. Mrs. William Flaherty, Theodore Jerrett, Clarence Dennis are in charge of tickets and Mrs. Murray Blutman, Mrs. Fred Smith and Mrs. Emanuel Keiper of refreshments.

Jointure Officials Speak
A panel discussion of the new Pocono Mountain Joint School which will be in operation next September featured Neil Polumbo, principal of the Coolbaugh Twp. High School, and assistant principal of the new Junior-Senior High School, as moderators.

C. Willis Dunlap, supervising principal of the new school, outlined the physical aspects of the school and facts about its construction. He described different methods of teaching which will be possible with the new facilities.

Lawrence Wile, high school principal, outlined the courses of study which will be offered in the new school, discussing the various subjects, why they are being offered and the new courses to be added when the school is in operation.

James Davenport, elementary supervisor, outlined the advantages for the children in the elementary grades under the joint school set-up and explained plans for a kindergarten and elementary center in the near future.

David Nelson, business manager of the jointure, explained the financial picture, the budget, cost of construction, the way school taxes are collected and the make-up of board of the directors of the jointure.

Joseph Kobich represented the Coolbaugh Twp. school board. A question and answer period and discussion followed their presentation.

Refreshments were served with Mrs. Homer Jones, Mrs. William Post, and Mrs. Elwood Bobby as hostesses.

Training Table Menus Good For Family, Too

By Ida Bailey Allen

The men at the Columbia University training table are given from 3,500 to 5,000 calories a day (the amount eaten by many fast-growing teen-age boys) or the quantity needed by lumbermen or other active outdoor workers.

Reduce Portions
To keep the building-potential of these training-table menus in feeding the average family, reduce the size of all portions from 1/4 to one-third (including milk), but do not omit any of the foods, as these meals are balanced for building and upkeep.

Add plenty of exercise (adjusted to the ages of members of the family) together with rest and recreation and you'll be gratified at the family health improvement.

High In Proteins
The Columbia training-table menus contain a higher amount of protein and are lower in starch, sugar and fat than usual. There is a preponderance of fresh vegetables and fruits to insure the needed quota of minerals and vitamins and supply necessary roughage.

All foods are cooked to conserve fine flavor and full nutritive values and are prepared for easy digestibility.

Tomorrow's Meals from Columbia University Training Table

Breakfast: Purple plums (4); choice of hot oatmeal or any dry cereal with milk; scrambled eggs (2); 2 pieces toast, well dried, 1 large piece butter; hot tea or coffee with milk.

Family Breakfast: As above with this change, if desired — a choice of oatmeal cooked in milk or 1 scrambled egg and 2 slices crisp bacon per person.

Luncheon (Also for the family): a (6-oz.) glass tomato juice; chicken with mixed vegetables, 2 pieces toast, well dried, 1 piece butter; 1 (10-oz.) glass milk, fruit-flavored gelatin; tea with lemon.

Chicken with Mixed Vegetables: Heat 3 c. bite-sized pieces cooked chicken with 3 c. mixed vegetables and 2 c. chicken gravy, seasoned with curry powder, if desired. Serve on buttered toast.

Dinner (Also for the family): Cream of tomato soup; hearts of lettuce, mayonnaise; prime ribs of beef, fresh spinach, mashed potatoes; 2 pieces toast, well dried, 1 piece butter; 1 (10-oz.) glass milk; rice pudding; tea with lemon.

Rice Pudding: In 3-pt. buttered baking dish mix 2 c. cooked or converted rice, 3 beaten eggs, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/2 c. plus 2 tsp. sugar, 1 tsp. vanilla add 3 c. milk. Set in pan; surround with hot water. Bake in mod. oven, 350 degrees F., about 45 mi. or until firm in center.

Serve warm or cold "as is", or with half-and-half, or with maple syrup or currant jelly sauce. Serves 6.

The Chef Suggests
To transform chicken with mixed vegetables into a dish Orientale, add 6 thin-sliced water chestnuts, 1 c. drained canned bean sprouts, 2 tsp. thin-sliced green ginger root, if available (or use one-third tsp. powdered ginger) and 1 1/2 tsp. soy sauce or to taste.

Russian Educational Facilities

ALLENTOWN Russian educational facilities will be discussed at a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Muhlenberg College Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. at St. Michael's Lutheran Church, 9th and Turner Sts., Allentown.

Principal speaker will be Dr. George A. Eichler, superintendent of Northampton Area Joint Schools and a Muhlenberg alumnus. His talk is entitled, "Russian Education Versus American Education."

Dr. Eichler was one of 31 American educators who traveled to Russia in October, 1959, for the purpose of evaluating Russian education.

While in Russia, Dr. Eichler gained first-hand information through inspection of Soviet schools and conferences with school and college faculties in Moscow, Thilisi and Kiev.

The Rev. Dr. Carl E. Neudorff, pastor of the host church, will lead devotions. Mrs. Harold J. Rickmers, auxiliary president, will conduct the business session, after which tea will be served. Mrs. Frederick H. Johnson, auxiliary president, will be the hostess. Addressing the group will be Mrs. Elmer Bausch and Mrs. Walter Roberts.

Better Account System Sought

HARRISBURG (AP)—Aud. Gen. Charles C. Smith yesterday asked that the Department of Revenue take steps to assure a better accounting system at Clarks Summit State Hospital.

Smith, a Republican, said an audit of the hospital's accounts for the fiscal year ended May 31, 1959, showed that $88,867 for hospital services had been billed before March, 1959. He added:

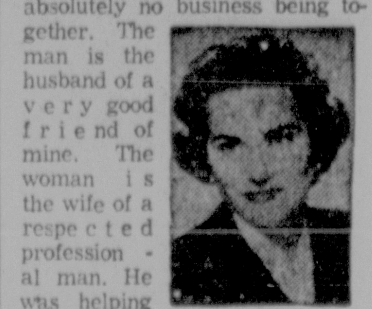

"Such overdue and unpaid accounts for a period of 90 days or over are required to be reported by the Department of Revenue to the department . . . in most instances, this has not been done. We recommend that corrective action be promptly taken."

He said the department's existing accounting system "does not provide for an adequate control of the cost of services supplied indigent patients."

Dear Abby

What Did You Expect?

Dear Abby: Yesterday I saw two people together who had absolutely no business being together. The man is the husband of a very good friend of mine. The woman is the wife of a respected professional man. He was helping her into his car and they were laughing and so wrapped up in each other's company they didn't know anyone else was on the street. This was about noon-time.

It worked on my mind so much I decided to call up my friend and tell her about her husband. She told me if she wanted a report on her husband's activities she would hire a private eye. I felt as though I'd been struck across the face.

Was she right talking to me like that when I was only trying to be a friend? If I had been in her place, I would have appreciated the tip.

SPEECHLESS
Dear Speechless: You should find yourself "speechless" more often. How do you know that the man and woman had absolutely no business being together? A woman once wrote to me with a similar story. It turned out her husband had asked the other woman to help him select a very special anniversary gift for her. Forget the tip and button your lip.

Dear Abby: I am approaching my second marriage and my ex-husband and I are on very friendly terms. He has asked for the favor of giving me away in marriage. He said nothing would give him more pleasure. I have no close relatives. Would this be proper?
SECOND TIME AROUND

Dear Second: If I were you, I'd hunt up a distant relative.

Dear Abby: How many showers do you think a 15-year-old boy needs to take in one day? I am a 14-year-old girl who goes steadily (not steady) with a boy named Mark. He never calls me so I call him. Yesterday I called him at 4:00 p.m. and his mother told me he was in the shower.

I called again at 5:00 p.m. and she said Mark was still in the shower. I called him again about 8:00 p.m. and honest to gosh, Abby, he said Mark was in the shower again. Why do you think Mark is in the shower so much?

GETTING NO PLACE
Dear Getting: Maybe Mark is trying to wash you out of his hair. Wise up, Honey. Don't call boys.
For a personal reply, send a self-stamped envelope to Abby, care of The Daily Record.

Law Professor New Tax Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mortimer Caplin, 44, a University of Virginia law professor, was chosen by President Kennedy yesterday to be internal revenue commissioner.

The White House announced that Kennedy will formally nominate Caplin, a Democrat, shortly. Caplin, whose home is at Charlottesville, Va., teaches corporate and tax law in the University Law School.

A native of New York, Caplin was educated in public schools there. He received a bachelor of science degree in economics and political science at the University of Virginia in 1937. He won a law degree at the same university three years later.

Fires Across U. S. Claim 50 Persons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
House fires that broke out yesterday and over the weekend took a heavy toll across the country. More than 50 persons died, including at least 28 children.

The worst of the blazes killed seven young children and an adult Monday at Pasadena, Md., about half way between Baltimore and

Many Pleased With Surplus

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
ADMINISTRATORS of free food programs in hard-hit counties of Pennsylvania generally are pleased with President Kennedy's move to channel more government surplus food to depressed areas.

However, some believe a greater variety of food should be included in the program to make it more attractive for the unemployed and their families.

Reaction to the move from officials of retail food stores was divided in a spot survey made Monday.

Spokesmen for three supermarkets in the depressed Fayette County coal region favored a stepped-up free food program. They said the unemployed can't pay for food anyway, so the government might as well do its best to help out.

But in Johnstown a zone manager for a supermarket chain said government handouts already are hurting business and an increase can only make matters worse.

The list of free food now includes flour, corn meal, powdered milk, powdered eggs, rice and cooking fat.

14 Die In Crash

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Fourteen persons were killed yesterday when a bus plunged down an embankment 50 miles north of Bangkok. Twenty other passengers were seriously injured.

Bloomensburg Pulls Stunning 79-57 Upset Over East Stroudsburg

Huskies Score Short Field Goals To Hand Warriors 1st Loop Loss

By CURT PRINS
Daily Record
Sports Editor

BLOOMENSBURG State College, consistently on easy lay-ups and short jump shots, scored a humiliating 79-57 upset over East Stroudsburg State College at Normal Hill last night.

It was the first Pennsylvania State College Conference loss for the Warriors and knocks them out of a three-way tie for second place in the Eastern Division. It was only the second loss in nine games for East Stroudsburg but it was the worst beating the club has taken in two years.

The largest crowd of the season, an estimated 3,000 plus people, overflowed the grandstands and more than 200 people stood at the ends of the floor.

Mansfield, which comes to town Saturday, whipped the Warriors by 15 points last season, the previous two-year high point spread.

Hopewell Lost Early

The Warriors were forced to play all but 12 minutes of the game without Russell Hopewell, who had been averaging 18 points a game. Hopewell picked up four fouls with 7:50 left in the first half. He appeared for only about a minute in the final half, before drawing his fifth foul. He scored six points.

Tony Salerno, the club's leading scorer with a 18.38 mark, fouled out with 12:15 left in the game but Bloomensburg had a 21-point lead at the time.

The Huskies, who are 3-2 in league play now, hit an amazing 60 per cent of their field goal attempts, but managed only 13 of 31 foul shots.

The Huskies tried only four shots from more than 25 feet out, all in the opening minutes of play. Center Norm Shutovitch tried all the "long" shots and hit on two of his attempts.

Switch To Inside

After Shutovitch's 25-footers, Bloom got off most of its shots inside the foul line, including numerous three-on-one fast break buckets.

East Stroudsburg stayed in contention for only 10 minutes of the game and the Huskies had a 20 point lead with 1:25 left in the half.

Bloomensburg completely dominated the boards, even though the Warriors at times sent four men after rebounds.

The extra man on the boards actually hurt the Warriors. It gave them only one man to defend against fast breaks. If Bloom grabbed the rebound, Bloom grabbed all night and its fast break had the Warriors slowed to almost a standstill late in the game.

Walsh Top Rebounder

Strangely enough, it was Larry Walsh of East Stroudsburg, who was the individual high rebounder. Walsh, who worked with weights during the summer to develop his legs, pulled in 16 rebounds. Bloom had three men in double figure rebound statistics.

Bloomensburg's Flip Houser led all scorers with 23 points. He collected 10 field goals, with the longest shot a two-footer from in front of the bucket. Gary Rupert, the smallest starter on the court, trailed Houser with 17. Rupert was the middle man in the Bloom fast break and in addition to his 17 points earned 11 assists. Dick Lloyd, the defending scoring champion in the conference, was next with 14 points. Lloyd did a good job rebounding and play making and shunned the long jump shot that he built his average on last season.

Tony Salerno, John Polonchak and Scott Weaver, each had 10 for the Warriors and Joe Habakus hit for eight. Two of Habakus' buckets came on over-the-head set shots from near half court.

Switch Defenses

Bloom used a man-to-man defense in the first half and a zone in the second.

The Warriors, who had ripped open zones in practice this week, managed only 27 points against the Bloom zone and had a tough time getting off a shot.

The Warriors took an early lead in the game but held it for only seven minutes. Bloom went ahead 16-14 with 12:50 left in the first half and three minutes later were out of danger.

At times the Warriors looked as if they would come back. They staged several six straight point rallies in the second half but every time they cut the Bloom lead to less than 20 points, Bloom unloaded its fast break again and rebuilt the advantage.

In the second half Bloom hit 15 of 22 floor attempts and three of the shots were tap-in tries.

East Stroudsburg won the junior varsity pre-lim, 78-56.

Vikings Studying NFL Draft List

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Minnesota Vikings Wednesday studied a list of 96 veteran National Football League players from which they will select a nucleus of 36 men by noon Thursday. The Vikings will become the 14th team in the expanded league next season.

General Manager Bert Rose of the Vikings said the player lists, containing eight from each of the 12 other clubs (Dallas excepted) had few surprises. He said the Vikings expected to put the emphasis on youth in a long range plan.

Close Guess

"It doesn't take a magician to pick eight men that a club would make available from its list of 36," he said. "I would say our guesses were only about 15 per cent off."

"Certain clubs have risked putting on their lists men who have ties in a particular area and who are nearing the retirement age. They are taking a calculated risk."

The Vikings are not permitted to contact the players on the lists to see if they are contemplating retirement. After they pick their men they contact the club that owns them which, in turn, gets in touch with the players.

As the deadline is noon (EST) Thursday, Rose figured it will be at least mid-afternoon before he will be able to release any names after they have been cleared by the other clubs.

Brocklin as a coach only and had no intentions of using him as a player-coach.

Van Brocklin, Rose and Joe Thomas, the Vikings' talent scout, have the job of picking the players.

The Viking also drafted 20 rookies last month and have made a deal with the New York Giants for quarterback George Shaw.

Free Sports Event Film

THE Daily Record will have a 16 mm sound motion picture, "The Outstanding Sports Events of 1960," available for free showing to area clubs and civic organizations from Jan. 28 to Feb. 9.

The film may be reserved by contacting Jack Haswell at Hamilton 1-3000. There is no charge for the film.

Cards Sign Musial For 20th Season

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stan Musial signed a contract Wednesday for his 20th campaign with the St. Louis Cardinals for an estimated $75,000, raising his total baseball earnings to $1,128,777.

The pact, said Redbird General Manager Bing Devine, "represents a slight adjustment from last year to fit in with the extent of Stan's participation, his reduced schedule."

Neither Devine nor Musial would elaborate.

Taken Out

This was taken to mean that Musial, one of the highest paid performers in the history of baseball, accepted a token cut from the $80,000 he is said to have received last year. At that time he took a voluntary $20,000 cut from $100,000.

Only Ted Williams is said to have drawn more money in baseball salaries than Musial.

Musial said the club "treated me royally."

Spahn Signs Big Contract

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee veteran Warren Spahn, the National League's all-time winning scout, signed a contract for an estimated $75,000 Wednesday for his 16th full season with the Braves.

Spahn, who will be 40 in April, dropped into County Stadium before leaving for his home at Hartshorn, Okla., and quickly agreed to terms in a conference with General Manager John McHale.

He had a 21-10 record last season in winning 20 or more games for the 11th time.

Virdon Sees Another Flag Liked Money For Bues Club

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—It's been 58 years since Pittsburgh won pennants back-to-back, but center fielder Bill Virdon feels confident the current Pirates can duplicate the feat.

"It's a challenge to do it again and we feel we can meet the challenge," said the ace glove man, one of the outstanding stars in the Bues' World Series triumph over the New York Yankees. It was Pittsburgh's first world championship in 35 years.

"We've got a taste of that series' money ($8,417.94 a man) and it was real good," said Bill. "We sure would like another helping."

Carry Over Steam

"The club was coming along great at the end and maybe the momentum will get us off to a fast start this season. We've got a fine club to start with and we got some help in that (Bobby) Shantz deal. He could do us a lot of good."

"Then there's Joe Gibbon. If he gets over his back trouble he could be a big winner."

Williams Gets 17 Against Northwestern

TED WILLIAMS, Stroud Union High graduate, who is the starting center for Michigan State University's basketball team, scored 17 points and grabbed 16 rebounds last week, but the Spartans dropped a 77-62 Big Ten decision to Northwestern.

Michigan State had a 1-5 record in the conference but most of the starters, including Williams, are sophomores.

Tommy McDonald has criticized the Philadelphia Eagle's management, for not hiring Norm Van Brocklin to coach the world champions.

The Eagles reportedly told Van Brocklin three years ago, that he would get the job when his playing days were over.

"The Eagles went back on their word and this made me lose some of my respect for the management," McDonald told a New Mexico sports writer.

Since McDonald has not signed his 1961 contract, his blast might be termed "biting the hand before it feeds you."

Or it could mean that McDonald wants to be traded and would like to play with a team nearer his New Mexico home. Maybe he would like to go with the Minnesota Vikings, the club Van Brocklin will coach.

And Marty Baldwin, back from a recent trip to Chicago, for a sporting goods convention, says that Van Brocklin can't play for the Vikings. He has a contract with the Eagles that he must honor if he decides to play. Van Brocklin represented one of the sporting goods companies at the convention.

Vitamins Restore Kwak's Touch

If your child won't take his vitamins, let him read this.

Mike Kwak, Kings' College great basketball player, who made the Pennsylvania All-State College team and the All-East team last year, played poorly the early part of this season. He hit only 38 percent of his field goals and was not too effective rebounding.

During the Christmas vacation King's coach, Bob McGrane, ordered a physical check - for Kwak. The team physician found that Kwak had a vitamin deficiency and ordered vitamin injections.

Kwak had been taking the injections for a month and his playing has bordered on the sensational.

He has led King's to wins in five of its last six games, has been selected on the Eastern College Athletic Conference small college All-East team three weeks in a row and has raised his scoring average to 27.4 points a game, the best average in the state. His rebounding average of 19.5 a game is one of the best in the country. And his field goal accuracy has been raised to 53 percent.

ESSC Girl Hockey All-America

Chris Albright, East Stroudsburg State College girl's field hockey star, has been picked as one of the two honorable mentions for the All-American Field Hockey team.

Chris is only a sophomore, but she is the first girl in the history of the school to be selected for the honor while at Normal Hill. Several East Stroudsburg graduates have earned similar honors but after they left ESSC.

Phil Vishnesky, Pocono Twp. High graduate, who led the Monroe County Scholastic Basketball League in scoring last year, will enter the University of Dayton next semester. He plans to take a physical education course.

Snead To Spend Month To Get Ready For U. S. Open

NEW YORK (AP)—Sam Snead has tried almost everything in his futile bid for a U. S. Open Golf championship. Now he's going to try something else.

The keynote of his 1961 campaign: Calorie and psychology.

"I intend to spend all the month of March getting myself in physical shape — I'm going to lose at least 10 pounds," the slapping man from White Sulphur Springs, West Va., said Wednesday. "Then I'm going to spend two months of hard training."

"My aim is to be fit and ready when the tournament rolls around in June. I don't mean just physically — I mean mentally ready, too." He weighs 195.

Wants Trainer

Snead honored by the Metropolitan Golf Writers at their annual awards dinner here Tuesday night, said he even plans to hire a trainer to help him prepare for the Open, scheduled June 15-17 at the Oakland Hills Country Club in Birmingham, Mich.

"He'll tell me what to do and what not to do," Sam added. "He may even help keep me from tensing up in the tournament, as I sometimes do."

Venturi At Home For Frisco Golf

By JACK STEVENSON
(Associated Sports Writer)

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ken Venturi holds a special fondness for Harding Park, scene of the 27-hole San Francisco International Golf Tournament starting Thursday.

His father is a pro at the 6,538-yard, par 72 layout and Ken second leading money winner of 1960, played innumerable rounds there as a youngster.

Familiar Layout

After firing a 65 in a warmup round, Venturi commented, "some of the holes out there are just like they were when I was a kid. It played like a tough test of golf and the greens were just fine."

For this $57,000 tourney, three new holes have been built—the fourth, fifth and sixth.

Bill Casper of Apple Valley, Calif., who set a Pebble Beach course record of 65 in last week's Bing Crosby Tournament, toured Harding Park in the same figure.

Several foreign pros are listed. Haryoshi Kobari and Tedashi Kitsuta of Japan and Chen Cing-pro of Nationalist China have been here a week practicing.

Bob Rosburg, winner of the Crosby, is another golfer with long knowledge of Harding Park. From Palo Alto, Rosburg frequently played the course both as an amateur and a pro.

Casper Has 66 In Frisco Pro-Am

Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Round Billy Casper fired a 5-under-par 66 Wednesday in a rain-drenched pro-amateur preliminary to the $57,000 San Francisco International Open Golf Tournament.

The former U.S. Open champion from Apple Valley, Calif., collected $500 for low pro performance over the Harding Park course and stamped himself one of the favorites for the 72-hole tourney starting there Thursday.

Although Northern California had just experienced its driest winter period since 1897, the rain fell in sheets Wednesday with more predicted Thursday.

Top Spot Tie

Casper teamed with former Harding Park amateur champ Tom Dixon and tied for first place in the pro-amateur team event with a best-ball 61. Also there Bob Goetz, pro from Tulsa, Okla., and amateur John Woodson, a resTOR from Fairfax, Calif. The two pros each collected $753 top prize in the team event.

Deadlocked for second place among the pros at 68 were Gary Player of South Africa and Bert Weaver of Daytona Beach, Fla.

Ken Venturi, whose father is a pro at Harding Park, carded a 71.

Most of the foreigners who will compete in the tournament did not play in the pro-amateur. A special ceremony honoring them was cancelled because of rain.

Sr. League Sets Record Night Slate

CINCINNATI (AP) — National League teams, which will open the 1961 season April 11, will play a record 318 night games.

The league schedule, which underwent a couple of last minute changes, was released Wednesday. The old record for night games was 314, and was set in 1960.

Dave Grote, head of the National League Service Bureau, did a bit of rapid figuring and estimated the eight clubs will travel a grand total of 216,000 miles, the equivalent to approximately 8 1/2 times around the world.

Opening Games

The opening games will bring together Chicago at Cincinnati; St. Louis at Milwaukee; Pittsburgh at San Francisco, and Philadelphia at Los Angeles. The Los Angeles-Phils game will be played at night.

The two All-Star games will not be back to back, as they were last year. The first game will be on July 11 at San Francisco and the second at Boston on July 31.

Each team will make four trips to the West Coast. Los Angeles and San Francisco also will make four trips east.

Home Owners Turn Toward Planting Of Evergreens

By George Abraham
BUYING EVERGREENS — Home owners will soon be thinking about planting evergreens around the home and the big question is: What kind is best? This depends upon your own personal taste. Perhaps you do not want a planting completely of evergreens and in that case you can combine deciduous shrubs (those that shed their leaves). These can be mixed nicely with evergreens which to some are monotonous the year around.

Evergreens carry the burden of furnishing interest and color during the winter months, but by combining them with flowering shrubs you have a more pleasing effect all year around.

If you want pyramidal forms, use the Pyramid Cedar (Arborvitae), the Dundee Juniper, or clipped Japanese Yew. The Arborvitae is used frequently, but be prepared to keep dogs away from it, and also have your pruning shears sharpened, because it needs regular shearing.

Some round evergreens you can use are the Mugo Pine, Globe Arborvitae, and you can trim the spreading Yew into a round shape. Spreading types are ideal beneath windows and these include the Savins, Andorra and Pfitzer junipers.

Old-Fashioned Apples
Evergreens are excellent against a light background but remember they don't soften ugly lines as well as the loose growing deciduous shrubs, and they won't grow where floods of water and snow fall from the roof.

There's a drive afoot to bring back the "good old apples" to the home gardener, and these include the Russet, The Strawberry Apple, the Snow Apple (Fameuse), the Sheepshead Apple (Black Gullflower) and many others we all remember so well.

One reason why such fine apples "went out the window" is because they had faults which commercial growers did not like. Most of the old-time apples were grown for home use, with the surplus sold at local farmers' markets. Today's apples must be good keepers, good shippers, not too exacting as to soil and climate.

Like everything else, apple varieties change. Still, I'm glad to see folks interested in the old Strawberry apple, Maiden Blush, Early Harvest and Esopus Spitzenberg. If home gardeners put enough pressure upon their nurserymen, perhaps they will oblige and propagate these fine old varieties and bring them back to us.

Scrapbook
When a plant "bolts", what happens? In horticulture, bolting refers to the tendency of a plant to go to seed prematurely, as lettuce does in early summer. This condition is due usually to weather, or inherited traits. A good lettuce which resists "bolting" is Salad Bowl, staying in prime condition practically all season long. This is a fine looseleaf lettuce which holds its flavor despite summer heat.

Question of the week — F.N. of Stroudsburg: "I saved seed from some flowers and vegetable plants last fall. Would it be safe to use or should I buy new seed?"

There's no reason why you cannot save seed from many non-hybrid vegetables or flowers. Some subjects such as onions, beans, peas, corn, lettuce, parsnips and others are often saved, but it should be remembered that these are rather short-lived and lose their viability in 2 or 3 years of storage.

The best storage for seeds is a dry, cool place in cans sealed to keep out mice and insects. Never try to keep seeds of hybrid flowers or vegetables.

To be on the safe side, test your seed before sowing. Just take a piece of blotter or heavy paper towel and moisten it, then place on a soup plate. Seeds are counted and placed on the blotter, and another moistened blotter is used to cover the seeds, and covered with a plate, giving the effect of a small moisture chamber between the two plates.

Germination starts in four or five days and you count the seed which came up. For example, if you placed 100 seeds in the paper towel and 10 of them sprouted, that means 10 per cent germination, which is very low. You should have at least 80 per cent germination. High quality seed is the cheapest item in the cost of growing, and if germination is low or if sprouts are weak and spindly, better use good seed.

M.E. of Augusta: "Our fruit tree is about 8 years old and although it flowers, no fruit is produced. Is there anything we can do to make it fruit? It's an apple, and other apple trees are nearby."

Some fruit trees (such as Northern Spy) will not bear until about 13 years of age. There are some tricks to induce earlier bearing. Some growers often "ring" a tree, some bend the branches, each method being successful if you want to "ring" a tree, wait until about June 15th, and take a half inch section of bark from around the trunk. You do this by cutting thru the bark into the wood, all the way around the perimeter of the tree trunk. Then you make a second cut a half-inch above the first cut, and pull off the half-inch strip of bark. Do not cut too deeply as you may remove the cambium layer, the most vital part of the tree. Removing the layer acts similar to girdling, done by rabbits, except it's not so severe. Cover the wound with plastic sheet to prevent drying.

The removal of the bark prevents food materials made by the leaves on the tree top from moving to the roots. This stimulates flower buds for the following season. Thus, if a tree is ringed on June 15th, 1961, you can expect it to increase fruiting about October 1962. Of course, you couldn't expect an immature or newly planted tree to bear, even with the ringing process. A tree must wait until it has reached an age where it can produce flower blossoms.

Computing Yields

By William A. Doyle
Q. I am at a complete loss to understand how yields are computed on U.S. Treasury bonds. For instance, looking over a daily quotation sheet put out by one of the major bond houses, I see the Treasury 2 1/2 per cent bonds of 1969-74 quoted at "89.4 bid, 89.12 asked." Then the yield is given as 3.92 per cent. How do they arrive at that figure?

A. They use a somewhat complicated, but accurate and necessary, formula. The yield figure is on the basis of yield to maturity. In other words, what your money will earn if you buy the bond now and hold it until maturity.

The "89.4 bid, 89.12 asked" means that potential buyers are bidding $89 and four thirty-seconds for this particular bond, while potential sellers are asking $89 and twelve thirty-seconds. U.S. Treasuries have been quoted in 32nds since the early 1920s — much to the confusion of the average investor.

There are basic steps in figuring the yield to maturity, when a bond is quoted below par value. First divide the annual interest rate by the asked price. That subtract the asked price (the gives you the current yield. Then the maturity value. The maturity value, in this case, is the par value — $100. That will give you the amount the bond will "appreciate" between the time you buy it and the time the bond will mature.

Next divide that total appreciation by the number of years between now and the maturity date of the bond. That will give you the "annual appreciation."

This gets even more complicated when the call price before maturity is above par value.

Q. I heard the other day that stocks listed on stock exchanges can be bought through certain brokerage firms that are not members of any stock exchange. I was told that listed stocks can be bought or sold without ever going through any stock exchange. Is this true?

A. Yes. Such trading in stocks is generally referred to as "off-board" or "block" trading. Although most of such trading is done for the accounts of institutions and small investors, this method is evidently becoming increasingly popular with small investors.

Next divide that total decline in value by the number of years between now and the "call date" — the date on which the Treasury has the right to redeem the bonds before maturity. That will give you annual decline.

Subtract the annual decline from the current yield and you have the yield to the call date.
